Negro shootings in which two men were killed kept police busy Sunday. The first victim was Cleveland Cook, address not given, who was shot and killed at Thurman and Mangum streets at about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The police arrested Albert Jeter, negro, no address, who said he fired on Cook after the latter had shot at him without provocation. An hour later a negro known only as "Preacher" was shot and killed at the home of Effie Green, 404 Henry street. The police were told another negro named Robert did the killing but he fled before their arrival. A general altercation during a social hour at Effie's home is said to have precipitated this fatality.

WORLD AIR HEROES ASSEMBLE IN ROME

Mussolini Voices Sympathy for Lindbergh in Recent Tragedy.

ROME, May 22.—(UP)—Inaugurating the first congress of the world's ocean fliers, Premier Benito Mussolini today paid tribute to the air heroes of many countries and expressed deep sympathy for Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

"I regret the absence of that noble hero, Colonel Lindbergh," the fascist premier said as he stood beneath a huge statue of Julius Caesar. "I am sure the hearts of all present are beating in sympathy with his."

The air heroes, who gathered here while Amelia Earhart Putnam was flying alone across the north Atlantic, met in Julius Caesar hall, sitting around a long table. The first session was attended by the diplomatic corps, members of the government and other dignitaries who joined about 100 aviators at the congress. Miss Earhart is expected to arrive here in the next few days.

Mussolini entered and greeted the fliers with the fascist salute. After officials of Rome had welcomed them, they arose and stood for one minute in silent tribute to George B. Sayers, trans-Atlantic flier, and Julius Bittay, another Hungarian pilot, who were killed yesterday in a crash at the Littorio airport.

"I am joyous in seeing so many heroes of so many countries gathered in this glorious hall of the Eternal City," Mussolini said. "But our joy is dimmed by the tragic death of Sayers and Bittay. We salute their memory with a virile spirit and extend an affectionate expression of solidarity to the whole Magyar nation."

The premier said he was gratified that all nations successful in trans-ocean flying were represented at the congress by a handful of heroes who, through their courage and skill and efficiency, led the way for many comrades of the air later to open new vistas for aviation.

"The sacrifice of fliers whose efforts were unsuccessful was not in vain," he said. "They are present in our spirit now."

Arthur W. Brown, of the famous British team of Alcock and Brown, which crossed from Newfoundland to Ireland in 1919, replied to the premier, thanking the Italian officials for their reception.

The visiting fliers also marched to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and were loudly cheered by crowds on the streets.

The United States was represented at the congress by George Haldeman, Hugh Herndon and Harold Gatty. Other noted fliers present were Sir Hubert Wilkins, the Australian explorer; Dieudonne Costes and Maurice Bellonte, of France, and Admiral Coutinho, of Portugal.

Mussolini's scheduled dinner in honor of the fliers was postponed until Monday out of respect for Endres and Bittay.

Carey Proposal Hit By Farm Board Head

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—Chairman Stone of the farm board charged today the proposal of the Chicago Board of Trade's president to dispose privately of stabilization wheat was another indication of the traders' belief that they are "entitled by custom to take a heavy toll from American wheat producers."

Peter B. Carey, the board of trade's head, had asserted yesterday six members of his organization could dispose of all the farm board's wheat for cash "at a steadily advancing price."

"The public shouldn't be fooled by such attacks on the farm board as those of Mr. Carey," Chairman Stone said in a statement. "Their purpose is not to help in the present situation but to prevent the farmer organizing his business so that he, in a measure, can control the method under which his products are sold."

He said Carey's proposition indicated "an attitude toward liquidation of these stocks strictly in conformity with the long established viewpoint of Board of Trade members."

BI-PARTISAN GROUP ASKS CO-OPERATION

with so much concern the possible effect upon our social and political institutions of the grave economic and financial problems which confront the American people that, on behalf of vast numbers of fellow citizens, we appeal through you to the members of the senate and of the house of representatives to lay aside every form of partisanship and of possible partisan advantage and quickly to unite to adopt a balanced federal budget for the coming fiscal year, as well as to enact a plan of taxation which shall be economically sound, fair to every group and calling, and without discrimination of privilege of class or sectional advantage of any kind.

Copies were mailed so that they arrived Saturday night to Senator James E. Watson, majority leader, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, democrat, minority leader in the senate, and to Representative Charles R. Crisp, democrat, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, republican, minority leader in the house of representatives.

The letter was made public today by the department of public information of Columbia University.

TWO DECISION DAYS FACE SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(AP)—Two decision days—tomorrow and May 31—remain before the supreme court takes its summer adjournment and by then it expects to dispose of the 18 cases on its docket with 17 opinions.

Few cases of national importance remain in the hands of the court. There is some doubt as to whether the petition of seven negroes under sentence of death of June 24, for assaults committed on two white women near Scottsboro, Ala., will reach the court in time for action at its present term.

New Orleans and Texas gulf ports are interested in the outcome of a contest over orders of the interstate commerce commission affecting railroad rates into and out of New Orleans, aimed by the commission to remove what it considered discrimination against Texas ports.

Two cases from South Carolina challenge the validity of the state tax on gasoline.

Congress and the president still have pending a decision by the judicial branch of the government in a dispute between the legislative and administrative branches as to whether bills passed by the two houses become law when signed by the president after the final adjournment of congress.

Heavy Floods Ravage Midlands of England

DERBY, Eng., May 22.—(AP)—The heaviest floods in half a century spread through the English midlands today, marooning thousands in and on their homes, disrupting all traffic, wrecking communications and causing great damage to property.

Early reports listed no casualties. The principal cities affected were Derby, Sheffield, Danbury, Northampton, Leicester, Buckingham, Worcester and Ashby-de-la-Zouches. Dozens of other towns and villages were wrestling with high waters.

Floridan Slain.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 22.—(AP)—Roy Miller, 27, of Jacksonville, was shot and killed today and police arrested Lester Spell and held him on suspicion of murder. The slaying occurred at Spell's home.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 23, 1932

THE CITIZEN'S FIRST DUTY.

Paramount to all other duties of citizenship is that of voting, and especially at a time like this, with local, state and federal governments faced by serious and troublesome problems, there should be a full expression by the people at the polls in order that able and responsible men may be named to office.

For many years the apathy of the rank and file of the voters resulted in the designation of our office-holders by a small minority of the people.

During the past two years there has been a marked improvement in the quality of the men chosen for public office in Atlanta, because the people, awakened from their apathy by the revelations of graft and incompetency in the city government, voted many capable and honest men into office.

While the large proportion of the office-holders in Atlanta are now men eminently fitted for their responsibilities, there remain some who do not measure up to the requirements of the positions they hold.

It is the duty of the voters to study the records of their public servants, decide for themselves whether they are qualified for their places, and then vote their convictions.

In a full expression of the will of the people there is but little danger of errors as to policies or personalities, and in such expression lies the chief safeguard of safe and sane government.

Every patriotic citizen having the best interest of the city at heart should go to the polls next Wednesday and cast his or her ballot. Only in that way can there be any assurance of a continuance of the government improvements which Atlanta has experienced during the past two years.

A NEW GERMAN LEADER.

Of the new figures which have arisen to prominence in Germany since the World War none wield the power in politics, economics and finance commanded by Alfred Hugenberg, multi-millionaire member of the reich.

He is a man of unusual contradictions. A close personal friend of President Hindenburg, he is so closely allied with Hitler that if the Nazi leader ever gains control it is doubtful whether he could make a go of it without the continued backing of Hugenberg.

Hugenberg is the man who pulls the strings behind the scenes, exercising his control in a manner similar to that of the big political bosses of past days in the United States.

He is the richest member of the reich and is the outstanding representative of German business in that body. He is supported by a majority of the big banks of the country for the simple reason that he is a large stockholder in most of them. He keeps his policies constantly before the people through the 30-odd newspapers and magazines he owns.

He runs the largest agency in the country, a big news and feature organization serving 1,600 newspapers and controls the UFA motion picture corporation which supplies films to 11 theaters in Germany.

He is the head of one party, the German nationalist, but is the chief financial supporter of another, Hitler's nationalist-socialist.

Instead of being an implacable enemy of France, he believes that Germany and France should unite and "run the show" in Europe, with the first step being a military campaign against Russia, with the margin of that far-spreading country to be jointly exploited thereafter.

It is to be expected that such a giant of politics, business and finance would be a man of imposing stature. Instead he is a stocky little fellow, with an upturned mustache of the style made popular by the Kaiser. He dresses somewhat foppishly, but his booming voice has gained him control over many a turbulent public meeting.

The socialist consider him a much more dangerous enemy of the republic than Hitler. He is hated, vilified and cartooned, but he is the power behind the scenes in Germany today.

BENEFITS FROM CONSTRUCTION.

Belief that a nation-wide program of public works construction, in which federal, state, county and municipal governments would cooperate, would "tend to put back into circulation vast sums of hoarded money and would create opportunities for the use of large numbers of the now idle man power" is expressed by C. C. Whitaker, widely known consulting engineer of Atlanta, in a communication published elsewhere on this page.

Few men in the south are more competent to write of the effects of such a construction program than Mr. Whitaker, who in his profession, has for many years been an active participant in public improvement movements of various kinds.

He includes in his communication the action of the American Society of Civil Engineers, through its executive committee, citing the benefits which would accrue from a nation-wide public works program, financed by the federal government, and calling on congress to "enact the necessary legislation to extend federal loan facilities to 'solvent states, counties and municipalities'."

The plan proposed is simple. It merely proposes that state, county and municipal governments issue bonds for intensive public works programs, these bonds to be reinforced during the period of the emergency by the credit of the federal government in order to insure a reasonable interest rate and selling price.

Such a proposal is now being considered by congress, along with other relief measures, and it seems apparent that it will be made a part of the federal relief program. It has many arguments in its favor. A considerable per cent of the army of unemployed would be given work, hundreds of millions of dollars would be turned loose to permeate every channel of trade, public improvements would be secured at a cost lower than may ever be possible in future, the federal government will be fully protected in whatever sum it appropriated for the program, and the state and local governments would have a long period of years over which to retire the bonded indebtedness, thus making lighter the burden of necessary relief.

The plan is certainly more desirable than many of the impractical suggestions which have been made, and deserves the serious consideration of congress.

BORAH WILL REMAIN BORAH.

Once again the copy editor has written the old familiar headline—Borah Warns of Third Party. It's probably been 15, maybe 20, years that Borah's been hunting and foretelling and predicting and warning of a third party. He hasn't elected to go any farther. And he probably won't.

There never was another Borah and there never will be another like him. Some say it's just as well. Others disagree. Anyway, there would be times when the newspapers would be less readable if it weren't for Borah.

Borah never likes what anyone else does. When his discomfite reaches a fixed degree he hints of a third party. When he gets a little more irked he foresees or visions a third party. When he feels a little worse about the matter in hand he may even go farther and predict a third party. But folks have learned to know that when he's riled he warns of a third party.

Everyone knows what Borah will do this year. He has been the president's severest critic and Hoover's opponent will be Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, a man probably truer to the ideal Borah cherishes than any other who has flashed across the presidential horizon since Borah became Borah. But the G. O. P. will renominate Hoover despite Borah, and when the campaign gets under way the Borah voice will go thundering up and down and back and forth across the country singing the praises of the nominee and his illustrious party.

Regardless of who is elected, he or Hoover or Roosevelt, or Joe Blow, Borah won't be satisfied. He can't be. A man of the foresight of Washington, the virtue of Jefferson, the sturdiness of Lincoln, the personality of Theodore Roosevelt and the brilliance of Wilson wouldn't satisfy Borah.

And so, as long as Borah is Borah, the copy editors will continue to sharpen their pencils and scrawl in a hand legible only to their own typesetter: Borah Warns of Third Party.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PASSEN

Epstein's Paintings.

The famous sculptor, Jacob Epstein, who caused several sensations by his bizarre conceptions in marble, as for instance on the occasion when he created a "Madonna and Child" last year, now has astonished London anew with a series of water colors. They are a magnificent attempt to unravel the emotional complexities of men like Saul, David, Moses and others. There is also Abolom and the Sumatran beauty, who passed from the harem of old King David to that of his son and successor, Solomon.

Epstein's Orientals, however, are by no means the people pious Sunday school pictures had made us familiar with. His paintings are strange, erotic rhapsodies, of a sultry, brooding culture, neither classical nor oriental, in the modern sense, simply Aryan. There is one painting of the woman in the Song of Songs. The title, taken from Scripture is: "She is terrible as a lioness." She is a lioness of whose nose is the Tower of Lebanon; whose neck is a tower of ivory; whose breasts are grape clusters; whose abdomen is like a heap of wheat; whose hair is as a flock of goats that appear from Gilead.

Seeing this illustration of Mr. Epstein's the immortal king's description of his beloved makes one feel he was correct.

Antwerp Harbor.

Life isn't what it used to be in the thousand and one ways, holes in the walls, sample rooms, taverns, cabarets and other refreshment (mostly liquid) emporia along the quays and wharfs of the Antwerp harbor. At that, it's one of the most delightful spots on earth, if you don't mind the smell of tar, a knife-fight once in a while and the barbaric rhythm of a Barbary organ. It's no place for a prim Puritan or a timid soul who believes that man is fundamentally good. Their notions might be upset, upset like tables and glasses when a Norwegian giant suddenly discovers that his half year's wages has been paid in a sack of potatoes.

When it did happen, the lanky Parisian dame in pink peignoir and green-painted finger nails, puffed reflectively at her dog-eared cigar and called over from the next table that "such is life." "C'est la Vie."

We nodded assent, for we just arrived from America and adjacent territories where the stowaway recently empty pockets rained upon us like manna of yore upon the wanderers in the desert. Such is life, we murmured.

The spirit of resignation was not shared by some Castilian sailor lads, who suddenly discovered that their not-so-hard-won pennies were gone. In other words, they challenged the house. The house, composed of a row of Flemish host who flourished a cutlase, 10th century style and a dozen Frenchmen, who drank little, made much noise and did a lot of boasting, the house, that is host and guests accepted the challenge.

When the lights were turned on again, the Castilians had disappeared. An hour later the host of the tavern discovered his daughter had accompanied them.

That too eat in life!

Of the World War
By Sergeant L. E. Jasecki
(All Rights Reserved.)

HARRY C. RICKET, (army serial No. 95597), cook, headquarters company, awarded the distinguished service cross, 10th Infantry, 42nd division, American Expeditionary Force, for extraordinary heroism in action with the enemy near Villers-sur-Pere, at the Chateau-de-la-Forêt, France, July 28 and 29, 1918.

During a bombardment so intense as to drive all other kitchens out of the village, when his stove had been taken to the rear, Cook Ricket improvised a fire in the ground and continued his work until ordered to leave. He carried water from a spring which was repeatedly shelled when others would not approach it. Unaided, and of his own volition, he rescued the first aid station, which was wounded and exhausted men at his kitchen.

Constantly in extreme personal danger from machine gun fire, low-flying airplanes and bombardment by high explosive shells, he devoted himself entirely to the needs of others and made possible the capture of over a hundred wounded, exhausted and hungry men.

Civilization Isn't a Blessing to Heathen Who Die of Its Vices

By Robert Quillen

The love of money corrupts and destroys all human institutions. The story of every great religion is a story of an unselfish teacher whose creed gave way to empty ritual as his followers battled for power and place and a "cut of the gate."

That is also the story of man's struggle for liberty. Other gains are forgotten while men risk their necks for freedom; but the moment their masters are safely hanged and tyranny ended, trickery and unbelief are enlisted again.

When America was young and her citizens proud of their new-found freedom, men divided themselves into political parties because they held conflicting opinion concerning matters of vital interest—policies of state, economic theories, methods of government, standards of morality and definitions of justice and right.

Men voted for principles, and the success of a candidate was the success of a cause.

Now we have parties without principle and candidates without purpose. The two "great political parties" are nothing more than job-hunting organizations, neither of them committed to a cause or a principle, and the one concern of party leaders and public servants is to keep their place on the public payroll.

The love of money has done its usual work. Citizens of all classes, knowing the government is pledged to no cause of policy except that dictated by expediency and present fears, organize themselves in groups to coerce and dominate it.

But these organized groups are not inspired by a passion to serve the country. With one or two possible exceptions, their sole purpose and desire is to raid the public treasury or win a special privilege.

The lust for money has blinded this people to all other concerns, and though innumerable social problems cry aloud for solution, the only citizens who organize to influence the government are those who want an appropriation and those who would solve the problem of taxation by shifting the burden to somebody else.

What can we buy with money to compensate for the shame and corruption and degradation and bankruptcy of character it has cost us?

Whitaker Cites Widespread Benefits
From Nationwide Construction Program

Editor Constitution: The chief essential of business recovery is the general resumption of trade. This implies the restoration of the consumer's ability to buy, which will result in the turning of the wheels of progress.

The loss of employment, reduced incomes, the general uncertainty of future conditions, with the resultant decline in consumer purchasing power, is the main factor in retarding the upward trend of industry.

A number of remedial measures have been applied by the federal government, chiefly by the intention of establishing greater security to the financial institutions, which has been hoped that confidence could be restored, a general abatement of hoarding accomplished, and more money put into circulation. Had conditions as hoped for by past legislation been accomplished, confidence would have been restored. Confidence is vitally important to the business world, and general trade stimulation can not be effected until same is assured.

The prevailing conditions of credit decline in the present emergency, measures, other than the ones that have been applied, will have to be used. Somewhere in the cycle of the pump of trade must be put in motion to produce an increased flow.

Put Direct to Work.
The most direct measure for immediate relief is to put the unemployed back to work, thereby creating a larger buying power and a resultant rise in commodity prices. Suggested measures have been suggested which, if applied, might prove an impetus to consumer buying. Most of these measures, however, are already in effect, and the remainder, if scrupulously controlled, would be helpful but are dangerously apt to get out of hand and cause a problem of our present troubles.

One recourse is available, however, that offers a promise of immediate relief, and that is the resumption of employment. Any relief measure suggested tending to avoid the demoralization of a debt, conserve the wealth represented by the national treasury and avoid the perils of excess inflation, should be given the support of our people.

A nationwide program of public works—federal, state, county and municipal—work to be financed by bond issue, would be a most effective emergency by the credit of the federal government in order to insure a reasonable interest rate, would tend to put back into circulation vast sums of hoarded money and would create opportunities for the use of large numbers of the now idle man power.

This method of overcoming an acute situation, if not as a whole, at least in part, will not in any way effect the "balancing of the federal budget," and should be given very serious consideration.

C. C. WHITAKER,
President Georgia Section, American Society of Civil Engineers.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 22.—Herbert Marshall, English actor, brought out at much expense for the Dietrich lead, will play opposite Miriam Hopkins in Sutherland's "Song of Songs," when that picture is released. Marshall is following the filming of "Blond Venus."

These two assignments are among the most enviable ones "producers" lay out for their stars. Marshall's last picture, "Always Juliet," in which he was appearing with Edna Best, his wife, in New York, had two more to go, yet Paramount paid off the cash, the theater and other expenses to get this actor in time for the Dietrich picture.

My answer is, he'd better be good. "Is My Face Red?" the story of that Broadway columnist who considered news first, last and always, before he wrote the story. The story comes one of the sure-fire pictures of the year as made by R. K. O. Every humorous phase of such existence and manner of life is depicted in the story and it is incorporated in a story that moves swiftly and has good dialogue.

Ricardo Cortez is the William Powell of the story. He is the Walter Winchell type of columnist, and two girls in his life, Peggy Bannan, a chorus, and Mildred Huntington, a social registerite, are played by Helen Twelvetrees and Jill Esmond. The story pretty well covers the columnist's life, and it is a story that would have made the original Walter Winchell.

BUENOS AIRES, May 22.—(AP)—The existence of white Indians with blond hair, who live like animals in the Grand desert of Northwestern Paraguay was confirmed by Dr. Donald S. W. and his team of explorers, on their arrival here today.

Dr. Wess recently spent five months penetrating this alternate jungle and arid country from central northeastern Paraguay to the upper Brazilian frontier. The explorers said the blond Indians are completely naked and are without homes, shelters or traps of any kind, subsisting on food gathered in the jungles or shot with bows and arrows. Dr. Wess obtained some of these crude weapons.

The explorers were unable to photograph the Indians, however, who he said were very suspicious.

The blond Indians are said to be a mixture of the blond and the black, and they sought for meat.

A FINE DRESSING FOR A BAD LEG.

Everybody has heard fools classified into three degrees. Well, ignorance does come in three degrees—there is the trial size, which can't do much harm, the household size and the hospital size. Persons ignorant in the first degree are not bad scouts at all. A good many of them know enough to comprehend that there is considerable they don't know, and often these are not only willing but eager and unafraid to learn. But the second degree of ignorance includes people who strive to get away with it, to conceal their ignorance. These are the most insufferable. They do not care to learn. They are complacent about their ignorance. They are incapable of understanding the advantages of knowledge. They are difficult to get along with and difficult to manage. The third degree of ignorance is the bygone type. These actually reject any effort to enlighten them. They are steeped in superstition and they constitute the life and sustenance of all vendors of hocus-pecus.

It is no reflection on a person's intelligence or reputation to have a varicose ulcer. But if he keeps the ulcer month after month and year after year, then unless it has already degenerated into cancer he must be an ignorant person, for every such sore or ulcer which has not been cured by medical school and hospital training can heal it. Not that there is some specific cure or remedy. The cure must be determined by the conditions in each case.

In a good many cases in recent years old chronic varicose ulcer has been permanently healed by the chemical obliteration of the varicose vein that is responsible for the ulceration.

Any one with such a leg ulcer, whether he be much troubled by it, varicose or enlarged veins or not, should make it a rule to lie on his back and elevate the legs to vertical for a few moments every hour of the day. While in this posture exercise the feet and legs by pretending to juggle a large ball upon the toes.

Before healing of any such ulcer can occur it is essential that the raw surface be clean, red, velvety, shiny and level with the surrounding skin. Foulting for a few days with fresh yeast mixed to a thick fluid with lukewarm water will clean up indolent ulcers and initiate healing.

Before dressing that has given much satisfaction is made of 6 ounces of gelatine, 3 ounces of zinc oxide, 10 ounces of glycerin and 10 ounces of water, slowly heated and stirred till a smooth rubbery mass is obtained. This is heated to melt it to the consistency of thin paint, and applied as paint to the whole leg, ulcer and all, from great toe joint up to a few inches below bend of knee. Of course the ulcer should first be washed with gauze soap and warm water and gently dried. The paint is best applied first thing in the morning. As soon as the first coat is applied put on a gauze bandage from toe to knee. Then immediately a second coat of paint. Then a second bandage. Finally a third coat of paint and a third bandage, and then finish off the job with a light surface coat of paint. There. Lots of time later to give you further directions. 66 ESCAPE UNINJURED AS FAST TRAIN WRECKS
BUFFALO, N. Y., May 22.—(AP)—Thirteen cars of the transcontinental main train, New York Central east-bound flyer, left the track near Irving, 26 miles southwest of Buffalo tonight.

Railroad officials said there were no deaths or serious injuries, but 66 passengers suffered a severe jolting. The passengers were brought to Buffalo on New York Central trains over the Nickel Plate road.

The cause of the accident had not been definitely established tonight, but officials said it had occurred at a cross-over. The locomotive and tender did not leave the rails. Two other cars remained on the tracks.

Alabama Drowns.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 22.—(AP)—Archibald Cheney, 48, of Palos, was drowned in the Warrior river, 15 miles south of here today, when a boat in which he was riding with two sons, capsized. York swam to safety.

MASSIES ARE GREETED BY KENTUCKY FRIENDS

WINCHESTER, Ky., May 22.—(AP)

Greetings from hundreds of friends and strangers were showered today on Lieutenant and Mrs. Thomas Massie, principals in the recent Honolulu lynching and attack cases.

The young naval officer and his wife came here yesterday from Chicago. They spent this morning quietly at the home of Massie's mother, Mrs. W. S. Massie, and this afternoon drove with a group of friends to Lexington to witness a polo game.

IRISH ABOLITION BILL DEFENDED BY DEVALERA

DUBLIN, May 22.—(UP)—The Irish Free State is merely claiming its right to "equal status" within the British empire when it abolishes the oath of allegiance to the crown, President Eamon De Valera said today in defending the abolition bill passed through the dail by his regime.

Replying to recent threats by Dominion Secretary J. H. Thomas that the preferences granted Ireland would be ended if the bill is enforced, De Valera said his cabinet's action was based on the Westminster agreement worked out at the imperial conferences in 1926 and 1930.

"Is there any sanctity attached to these words 'equal status'?" he asked, replying to Thomas' statement that the bill violates the 1921 Anglo-Irish treaty. "Is there no meaning to these words?"

De Valera said the British government does not still claim the right to dictate to the Irish people and to forbid them to adopt measures they deem wise for their own national and racial development. He reiterated his desire for friendly relations with England.

MRS. LUCY V. NOLLEY PASSES AT AGE OF 72
Mrs. Lucy V. Nolley, well-known Atlanta woman, died at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. W. W. Ogletree, at 1102 Breckinridge place, N. E. She suffered a paralytic stroke five years ago and had been in failing health since. She was 72 years old.

Mrs. Nolley was a native of Buckingham county, Virginia, but had resided here for more than 30 years. She was extremely active in church and women's organization until she was forced to curtail her activities because of her health.

A member of the First Methodist church during her residence here, Mrs. Nolley had taken a prominent part in the work of the various organizations of the church, especially the women's society. She was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and of the W. C. T. U., in which she was deeply interested.

The wife of the late Richmond E. Nolley, for many years connected with the Singer Sewing Machine Company here, Mrs. Nolley was the former Miss Lucy V. Cobb. She is survived by her daughter, the wife of W. W. Ogletree, a son, Woodcraft Manufacturing Company, a son, George E. Nolley, four grandchildren, and one great-grandchild, all of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements are under the direction of Brandon, Bond & Condon, and will be completed today.

WAR DEBTS, TARIFFS HIT BY TRADE BODY
ZURICH, Switzerland, May 22.—(UP)—War debts, tariffs and the fact in an effort to handicap the Hitlerian. A majority is now required.

If the old rule is restored, the fascists will elect the new Prussian premier and control the state, which consists of two-thirds of all Germany and admittedly will mean indirect fascist control of the Reich.

However, the communists may refuse to aid the fascists in restoring the old rule and therefore the Hitler party will not be able to take over complete power.

If they are confronted with this situation, and are still unable to agree with the Catholics, the Barun cabinet probably will be forced to continue to function pending some solution of the deadlock.

2 ARE MENTIONED FOR HINES' POST

The vacancy on the state supreme court caused by the death last week of Justice James K. Hines is expected to be filled by Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. this week.

Though the governor has given no indication of whom he has in mind for the post, the names of two members of the court of appeals, Judge R. C. Bell and Judge William F. Jenkins, have been mentioned prominently in connection with the place.

Whether the governor would follow the precedent he established when he appointed two temporary officials to fill the United States senatorship and the post of state attorney-general likewise can not be learned. However, if either Judge Bell or Judge Jenkins is appointed it is almost certain that the appointee will make the race for a regular term in the September primary.

The other recent appointees of the governor, Senator John S. Cohen and Attorney-General Lawrence Camp, will not seek election.

Other names have been mentioned in connection with the judgeship, including that of Solicitor-General John Boykin, of Atlanta, although mention of him has been made chiefly for the appellate court post in the event either Judge Bell or Judge Jenkins is elevated.

Interest in the judgeship Sunday did not overshadow the unexpected retirement from congress of Representative W. C. Wright of Newnan, who announced in Washington on Saturday that he would leave the house next March, without offering for re-election.

Owen, solicitor-general of the Griffin circuit, pointed out that the retirement of Congressman Wright made it apparently certain that Owen would be nominated for the vacancy. Owen already has announced he is a candidate.

NEW PRUSSIAN DIET TO COVENE TUESDAY
BERLIN, May 22.—(UP)—The fascist party of Adolf Hitler will make its bid to control of the Prussian government Tuesday when the diet convenes in a session which is expected to influence profoundly the policy of the reich and, eventually, seal the doom of German democracy.

The foremost question before the diet will be the election of a successor to Premier Brüning, the socialist leader, whose cabinet resigned last night in a letter addressed to the diet.

When the deputies assemble, the president's chair will be taken by former General Karl Litzmann, 82, a fascist leader, who will be acting as president by reason of seniority. The fascists, the strongest party and as winners in the April 24 election, will claim the right to form a new government.

They could be assured of a share of power by agreeing to a coalition with the Catholic center party, but it was believed tonight that such an agreement was impracticable at present. If no agreement is reached, the fascists are expected to attempt to "seize power by seeking restoration of the old rule and therefore the Hitler party will not be able to take over complete power."

If they are confronted with this situation, and are still unable to agree with the Catholics, the Barun cabinet probably will be forced to continue to function pending some solution of the deadlock.

'Rosey' Packs His Kit And Goes With a Grin

Veteran Lopped Off in Favor of Younger Man, Was Opening Day Hero.

By Jimmy Jones.

Swankily attired as usual and still wearing that devil-may-care grin, Si Rosenthal came by the clubhouse to tell the boys goodbye. It was after Saturday's double-header and Si had been sitting in the stands as a spectator, watching younger men play his position.

Only a few weeks had elapsed since the jovial "Rosey" had brought 12,000 fans to their feet on opening day with a spectacular home run drive in the tenth inning that won the game. Only Saturday morning, Harry Strohm, the Little Rock manager, sat in his hotel room and passed the remark that Rosenthal was one of the few left-handed hitters he had ever seen who was equally dangerous to right-handed and southpaw pitching.

"A real hitter, that guy," remarked Strohm.

But there was no malice in Si's heart when he got his walking papers. He passed it off as casually as he walks to plate with the bases full and his team needing a run or possibly two to catch up.

"That's the way the breaks come," he said, showing all his teeth in his broadest smile.

It was the first time he had packed his belongings out of Ponce de Leon park. They sent him away once before to regain his health and came back by leaving $347 for Mobile.

But Si didn't worry about it a bit. In fact, he may come back to the team as Leon on the head knocker for some other team and make us all sorry. He was one man who really packed his troubles in the old kit bag and smiled.

VERBALLY RIPS MAX WILSON'S OVERVIEW

Calls Champion 'Yellow' and Declares Him a Third-Rater.

By Jack Troy.

ORANBURG, N. Y., May 22.—(UP)—Having been goaded out of his sulks over the week-end, Jack Sharkey strode about the living room at Gus Wilson's training camp today, verbally ripping Champion Max Schmeling to pieces with his old-time vigor.

"You want my opinion of Schmeling?" he said.

"I think Schmeling is the cheapest, most over-rated imitator that ever stepped into the ring. As a fighter he's a third-rater, and as a champion he's worse than a joke."

"He hasn't got guts, ability, originality or personality. He won the title by dropping to the canvas like a yellow dog and yelling 'foul' because he knew I was beating him. When I got him into the ring this time, he won't be able to yell 'foul,' and I'll beat him into a pulp."

"His 'moment'."

Sharkey was having one of his traditional "moments." He is not an actor. If he had more showmanship and better control of his emotions, the ring and out, he might have evaded becoming one of America's most unpopular fighters.

"I'm sick of the whole business," Sharkey declared. "Sick of training the best months of every year, sick of fighting, sick of Madison Square Garden and their contracts."

"And I'm particularly sick of seeing you guys praise a boob like Schmeling to the skies, and poke fun at me. That has been done to death. Who has he fought to get a rating? He comes over here and imitates Jack Dempsey, trying to win the title of the American public by aping a hero."

"EN ROUTE TO CLEANERS."

"He tried to fight like Dempsey, and he was on the way to the cleaners when he pulled that foul stunt. That was no foul. The referee said that saved him was the bell. The timekeeper was counting him out, and had gone to the count of eight. When he came back, then they went into a huddle and decided he had been hit low. If he's a champion, I'm a featherweight."

Sharkey said the talk of Schmeling being a "slow starter" was "pure bunk." He said he was nothing but a "slow fighter" whose only hope for a win was in wearing the other man down.

"And that's where he's going to get beat this time," Sharkey concluded. "The longer the fight the better I get, compared to the other man. I keep moving and the other guy's got to be moving too, or get knocked out. If he lasts 12 rounds, he'll be so tired he'll be ready to quit again."

Sharkey said the talk of Schmeling being a "slow starter" was "pure bunk." He said he was nothing but a "slow fighter" whose only hope for a win was in wearing the other man down.

MASONIC CELEBRATION HEPHZIBAH FRIDAY

Russell of Georgia, Blackwood of S. C. to Address Delegates From Lodges.

HEPHZIBAH, Ga., May 22.—Governor Richard B. Russell, Jr., of Georgia, and Governor Ibra C. Blackwood, of South Carolina, both Masons, have accepted invitations to speak Friday, June 24, at the celebration of "The Festival of St. John the Baptist," to be held here by representatives of upwards of 200 Masonic lodges and chapters of Georgia and western South Carolina.

E. S. C. Baker, of Conway, S. C., grandmaster of the grand lodge of South Carolina, is expected to join Joseph Robertson, of Milledgeville, grandmaster of the grand lodge of Georgia, on the program.

The principal orator of the day will be Brigadier-General Robert J. Travis, of Savannah, past grandmaster of Georgia, past potentate of Alee Shrine temple, a thirty-third degree Mason and a distinguished Knight Templar.

While Hephzibah is to be the scene of the festival, the movement having originated with Richmond Lodge No. 412, of this city, the observance is also being sponsored by the "blue" lodges of Augusta, in co-operation with the lodges at north Augusta and Graniteville, S. C. Past grandmaster of South Carolina, is one of the leading members of the steering committee.

Formal letters of invitation will be mailed out this week to the lodges on both sides of the Savannah river and as far as possible it is planned to follow these with personal visits by committees. All Masons, their families and friends, will be welcomed, it is announced by R. Addison Lamsell, general chairman, who states that preparations are being made for the entertainment of 3,000 visitors.

The festival will be a one-day affair divided into three phases—inspirational, recreational and merry-making. It will begin at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, followed by a barbecue at 6 o'clock and closed with an elaborate carnival at night.

FORMER ATLANTAN URGES LOAN PLAN FOR UNEMPLOYED

NEW YORK, May 22.—(AP)—"A war on poverty is what the United States needs," said W. E. Woodward today. His latest book is called "Money for Tomorrow."

"We should have all the organization, crusading and planning to stamp out poverty that we had to defeat any foreign enemy," continues the man who may be remembered longest for his "de-bunking" lives of George Washington and General Grant.

"I would provide that every man in the United States unemployed as long as three months could go and borrow half as much as he was earning on his last job in no case exceeding a loan of $50 a month."

"Half of this loan would never be paid back. But it would create buying power where it is most needed."

Woodward, who was at one time on The Atlanta Constitution, learned the cotton mill business as a boy in North Carolina. He said, "I could get $1.25 a day, or $7.50 a week as a weaver, tending six looms. Today the weaver gets about $15 a week and his helper $10, in all, $25 a week, and they tend 72 looms. Production has gone up 12 times and labor costs less than four times."

"Now that is one thing wrong with this country. If labor is not given purchasing power equal to its productive capacity, industry runs into a blind alley."

Each member of the club is privileged to invite a friend, and if desired, carry sewing or needlework and a hot lunch, and spend all or a part of the day, sewing, playing bridge, chatting, and otherwise enjoying a social contact with members and friends. Mrs. Jones invited club members to visit the building when dances are in progress, either as chaperones or in friendly interest.

Mrs. W. H. Hamilton, president of the garden division, told of the garden club of Georgia meeting in Athens, of the fifth district flower show, and the local exhibit of last Tuesday. She explained that in judging sweepstakes, displays, the substance, classification, arrangement and various other details are considered. The garden division meets June 7, and Elberta Freeman will discuss "The Care and Cultivation of Phlox," and a study of Hugh Findlay's book, "Garden Making and Keeping," will be begun.

Mrs. Howard presided and Miss Susie Johnson, the secretary, read the collect, and Mrs. W. J. Sayward presented the program, including two violin solos by Miss Frances Collins, with Mrs. S. R. Problems of general interest submitted for readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

The Boss in the American Home Is the Man or Woman Whom Nature Has Equipped for the Position—When the Men Are Shy It Doesn't Pay to Close in on Them.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Are you behind the times when you advocate the man's showing the wife that he is boss? The unworthy makes take this advice and use it to wreak injustice on the women that labor under loads heavy enough as they are. The Japanese have this idea of the male supremacy but the American idea is different. Think again, Miss Chatfield.

ANSWER:

There is a big difference between a principle enunciated as a principle and an isolated piece of advice offered to a young man who is being neglected and imposed upon by a lazy, trifling young wife. The one referred to married him with the promise that she would do her part in lifting the marriage load, but straightaway forgot her promise and took her bed in indolence and idleness. My second thought, like the first, is that husband should pop any whip he finds at hand to get her up, and out, and at work. The same advice would be offered a bossman who finds himself being neglected by a shiftless husband, the advice to ring out, in loud voice a peremptory command that he stand on his feet and do his part. But this doesn't say that either the wives or the husbands should be showing each other who is boss in the home. It only says that where one of them has force of character and the other lacks it, the forceful one must take charge, must speak with the voice of authority. Whether it be wife or husband matters not.

So much for the case of special pleading. In regard to the principle in the question as to who shall be boss in the home, the man or the woman, Americans and Japanese and all the other nations of the world may formulate codes of domestic ethics and lay down all sorts of sentimental and economic laws governing relations of husbands to wives. But if you will observe you will discover that the real question of who is boss in America, at least, depends entirely on whom nature has fitted to be boss.

No modern woman that has had a taste of economic independence or one that has looked on the sorry spectacle of the wives of the former generation who didn't know anything about independence would advocate any policy of voluntary subjection and lay down all sorts of sentimental and economic laws governing relations of husbands to wives. But the whole idea of bossship is a humiliating one when it is applied to men and women in marriage. There is inherent in the word boss the idea of servility, of master and slave, rather than that of partnership.

The question of who is boss never arises except where there is friction. There is no necessity to determine whose word is law in a home where there is agreement and concord between the husband and the wife. If each of them does his or her duty there is no need for peremptory command, for the voice of authority. Being human, of course, nobody can always be exemplary in conduct, but it is in the failure to measure up to the other's expectations that love may play its star part.

I am not advocating male supremacy. I am not suggesting that any self-respecting woman that does her part in the partnership, should be subservient to the will of the man just because he is a man. I am not intending "to put notions" in the minds of worthless men that trade on their masculinity to wreak injustice on the women that labor under loads too great for them. But on second and third thought I do say that the man or the woman that hasn't the moral stamina to carry out his or her part of the marriage contract makes himself or herself subservient to the stronger will of the other. If they are both without sense of responsibility, both fall in the moral and financial ditch, and a deep ditch it is too.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

A year ago a man moved to my town and we became friends immediately. About three months ago we began to drift apart and gradually became strangers. I still care for him though, naturally I conceal it. When he is around me he behaves very cold toward me but I notice he wishes me all the time. He has told a friend of mine that I hate him. I want his friendship more than anything in the world and don't know how to go about getting it. Can you suggest a way out for me?

BROWNIE.

ANSWER:

Why don't you invite him to a meal with the family? That would be a distinctly friendly gesture on your part and one that would not be compromising in any way. Note that it is more conducive to friendship between young people than a getting together around the family board. The presence of the family makes it an impersonal contact, yet adds that warm touch of hospitality that is always welcome to a person away from home. We don't invite people to dinner at our homes and if the man is laboring under the delusion that you dislike him the invitation will summarily dispel it.

Don't invite nor permit intimate personal conversation. If the man is shy of you and constrained in your presence you will scare him off by closing in on him. Make the conversation casual though friendly, and by that method you will open the way for further association.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Culbertson on Contract

When Silence Is Golden

BY ELY CULBERTSON.

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Philosophers tell us there is a time to speak and a time to hold your tongue. The wise bridge player is the one who realizes when silence is golden during the contracting. The most eloquent of all birds is the peacock, and you do not need to be a great player to become an eloquent bidder. We don't invite people to dinner at our homes and if the man is laboring under the delusion that you dislike him the invitation will summarily dispel it.

The principles underlying this homily must now be firmly impressed upon two bridge players who were sitting North and South in a rubber game the other day in a New York bridge club. Their failure somewhere in the four hectic rounds of bidding to adhere to this precept cost them a set of rather amazing proportions. The hand and bidding were:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ J 10 9 8 4
♥ J 10 8 6 3 2
♣ A K 5 2

♥ A 10 7 6

South West North East
Pass Pass Pass 1♠ (1)
2NT (4) Dbl (5) 3♠ (6) Dbl.
4♠ (7) Dbl. Pass (8) Pass

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in the table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

1—With 4 honor-tricks and two bidable major suits, East cannot pass.
2—South cannot be greatly blamed for this overcall.
3—Sensing the misfit of the hands.
4—Seeking a way out. We don't invite people to dinner at our homes and if the man is laboring under the delusion that you dislike him the invitation will summarily dispel it.
5—North gives up.
6—West opened the Ace of clubs, and when the absence of trumps in the dummy was disclosed and East played the 3, continued with a low club. East ruffed, and led the King of hearts, and when played the singleton Queen, shifted to the King of spades, permitting West to discard the last heart. The Ace of hearts was then led, South ruffed, and West overruffed and led another club for East to trump. East won the King, and West winning the trick with the Ace of trumps in order to lead another club and permit East to use his last trump.

When the smoke of battle had cleared away, North and South had won but 3 tricks, suffering a penalty of 2,000 points, due to their failure to stop bidding somewhere along the line. The hand was one in which no matter which side obtained the contract, trouble was sure to follow the attempt to play it. Fortunately for East and West, North and South would not stop talking, as otherwise the penalty, although not so severe, might have been assessed against them rather than their opponents.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Bids based solely upon distributional values, particularly when the bidding has disclosed that length and strength in these suits are adversely held, usually are losing bids at the bridge table.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow.

The Ace of hearts was then led, South ruffed, and West overruffed and led another club for East to trump. East won the King, and West winning the trick with the Ace of trumps in order to lead another club and permit East to use his last trump.

When the smoke of battle had cleared away, North and South had won but 3 tricks, suffering a penalty of 2,000 points, due to their failure to stop bidding somewhere along the line. The hand was one in which no matter which side obtained the contract, trouble was sure to follow the attempt to play it. Fortunately for East and West, North and South would not stop talking, as otherwise the penalty, although not so severe, might have been assessed against them rather than their opponents.

The bidding:

(Figures after bids in the table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

1—With 4 honor-tricks and two bidable major suits, East cannot pass.
2—South cannot be greatly blamed for this overcall.
3—Sensing the misfit of the hands.
4—Seeking a way out. We don't invite people to dinner at our homes and if the man is laboring under the delusion that you dislike him the invitation will summarily dispel it.
5—North gives up.
6—West opened the Ace of clubs, and when the absence of trumps in the dummy was disclosed and East played the 3, continued with a low club. East ruffed, and led the King of hearts, and when played the singleton Queen, shifted to the King of spades, permitting West to discard the last heart. ## SOLONS DENOUNCE NEPOTISM RACKET

Revelations by United Press Draw Widespread Commendation.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—(UP)—The full scope of the congressional pay roll racket, revealed after the house voted to open the hitherto secret lists for immediate public inspection, has amazed the nation's capital.

The fact that some congressmen and senators carried relatives on their pay roll, of course, was known here. The extent to which this practice was being conducted, however, was first intimated late in April in a series of dispatches written by Raymond Clapper, chief of the Washington bureau of the United Press.

The series attracted immediate nationwide attention. The articles disclosed legislators had on their pay rolls relatives who never appeared in the office; relatives who drew government money and acted as contact agents "back home"; debenture daughters who lived on expensive loans and used their salary checks as "pin money"; congressmen who spent government funds lavishly while on different junkets, and other practices.

Flood of Protests.

Letters of protest began arriving by the thousands from folks "back home" who were feeling the pinch of unemployment. Indignant letters were sent to the White House, which has no authority to end this racket. Soon the United Press dispatches became the leading topic of interest here as congressmen struggled to enact an economy bill, a measure to give relief to unemployed and to pass the great peace-time tax bill ever known to this country.

The revelations brought chuckles and smiles from cabinet members who have been investigated so often by congress. Some congressmen hurried to explain why they kept relatives on the pay roll because they needed a trustworthy person to handle confidential business.

Hard-working clerks who saw non-working "in-laws" drawing the large salary checks welcomed the disclosure, secretly, of course. Then the storm broke. Twice the house had rejected attempts to make the pay roll lists public, when Representative Lindsay Warren, democrat, North Carolina, again introduced a resolution carrying this provision.

Pay Roll Opened.

It was unanimously adopted and the pay roll books were thrown open. They revealed that in April more than 100 members still were carrying as secretaries or clerks, persons bearing the same family names. Other relatives are known to be on the pay roll under different names.

The thousands of letters that have poured in on congressmen reveal the interest attracted by the United Press articles.

"Until a few weeks ago I had always thought the records were public," said Representative Warren. "As soon as I found they were not, I introduced my resolution."

"In this particular period it is the duty and obligation of all units of the

B. & O. HALTS TRAIN TO STATEMATE VETS ON BONUS JOURNEY

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 22.—(UP)—More than 300 World War veterans, on their way from Portland, Ore., to Washington to urge passage of a bonus bill by congress, remained "camped" in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards here tonight, stalemated by refusal of the railroad to move the freight train which they had boarded today for the remainder of their journey.

The freight train was scheduled to leave at mid-afternoon. Instead, some of the cars were disconnected and shunted back into the train shed. Refrigerator cars containing perishable foodstuffs were among the 20 cars comprising the train.

Sheriff Jerome Munn, of St. Clair county, unsuccessfully attempted to persuade the "box-car expedition" to leave the railway company's property.

The sheriff said he had talked with Governor Emmerson, of Illinois, who promised, he said, to send state militiamen here if they should be needed.

As time for departure of the train arrived, members of the "expedition" boarded the train's kitchen equipment and the more than 300 men clambered aboard the train.

Officials of the B. & O. railroad stuck to their statements that rail regulations, and safety of men riding atop the cars, would prompt them to board freight trains boarded by the veterans.

government to provide the "ullest and most complete information possible" to the public, and I feel that the passing of the resolution will have a wholesome effect throughout the country."

Representative Harold McGugin, republican, Kansas, praised the disclosures, saying:

"When you are on the pay roll and not working, it is a national scandal. The series has been beneficial."

Similar comment came from other members of the house who are not employing their own relatives. The senate, on the other hand, seeks to give the impression that the pay roll racket is too trivial a matter to give attention to. This despite the fact that the senate pay roll, still secret, probably would reveal the same proportion of relatives being supported at public expense as shown in house records.

The United Press dispatches already have disclosed non-working relatives on the pay rolls of some of the senate leaders, but not one word about this subject has been said on the senate floor. Senators to whom the United Press has talked generally have declined to comment on the practice.

Only one, Senator Huey Long, democrat, Louisiana, would be quoted, and he made his observations in his usual, forceful style.

"I have no relatives on my pay roll," he said, "but I think others have a perfect right to put them on. There are better handled by kinfolk. A man has as much right to put them on his pay roll as someone from China or from someone else's family."

COTTON RALLIES AT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, May 22.—(UP)—While trading in the cotton market was rather moderate during the past week, prices on the whole were well sustained. In early week there was a trend toward easier levels owing to the downward course of stocks and a belief that the government's weekly weather and crop summary would prove favorable. When on the contrary, the report proved unfavorable and the stock market rallied, cotton prices improved in sympathy. The extreme range of fluctuations was between 23 to 25 points and the close of the week showed net gains of about 17 to 18 points or a little under a dollar a bale.

Crop advices indicate that the drought in the eastern belt has been relieved by good rains at the close of the week, but Texas and the west generally complain of rather too much rain which has caused washing out of plants. Complaints of low temperatures and cool nights have been general.

The spot demand has been decidedly light both from domestic mills and from foreign spinners.

Exports from American ports have been moderate during the past week but have nevertheless run ahead of the corresponding week last season.

The following shows the high, low and closing sales in the New Orleans futures market for the past week compared with a year ago:

	High	Low	Close	Last Year
May	5.72	5.49	5.65	5.86
June	5.80	5.53	5.77	5.96
July	6.01	5.74	5.98	6.32
Aug.	6.10	5.86	6.08	6.33
Sept.	6.21	6.05	6.16	6.63

BOND LIST CONTINUES ON DOWNWARD COURSE

BY VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Although some special issues maintained an underlying firmness, the bond market, as a whole, offered little encouragement to traders and investors during the past week.

Average losses were not great, but support was lacking in practically all categories during most of the period.

Contradictory news developments had much to do with the market's erratic tendencies.

Announcement Thursday evening of the appointment of a committee of 12 prominent industrialists and bankers to aid the federal reserve system in speeding up the credit expansion program, brought a sharp rally in the early part of Friday's session.

The United States government department had a relapse on Thursday and Friday, but recovered substantially on Saturday. The weakness of the federal was attributed partly to reports that the reserve banks would "cut" down their recent heavy buying of government obligations.

Dealers pointed out that various factors were to be considered as affecting the corporate loans market. Among these were the uncertainties connected with the balancing of the national budget and congressional action on taxes.

The railroads again led the declining movement, with most of the second grade bonds showing substantial losses.

HARVEY'S IS KNOWN FOR ITS FINE CUISINE

Atlanta is known the country over for its fine restaurants and cafes. This is due, in large measure, to the fact that luncheon and dinner are a major part of the social, business and civic activities of the city.

One of the most popular here is Harvey's at 98 Luckie street. It is open 24 hours a day and is famed for its extensive variety of foods and the tasty manner in which they are cooked.

It is the pride of the management that they can offer a good dinner at any man's price, and then cook it for him in the manner he prefers.

Should the visitor be from some remote section of this country or from a foreign land, and wish some particular dish or full meal cooked in his native or accustomed way, he may have it.

As an illustration of "if it swims and is edible they have it," they are the rendezvous of all that like sea food. It being conceded by famous epicures that pompano is about the choicest fish obtainable in this part of the world, Harvey's receive it fresh daily, and the large number of pompano dinners they serve every day shows that there are many who are partial to dinners of this type.

Another reason why Harvey's is becoming famous the country over is that there are scores of Atlanta people, who, wishing to entertain distinguished guests, take them to Harvey's without hesitation, knowing that however fastidious they may be, they can find on the menu card their favorite dish and have it prepared just as they like it.

Behind every good restaurant, successful business or institution, there is some man or policy that accounts for the success of the restaurant. In the case of Harvey's it is Sam Dardane, who qualifies as one of the city's leading chefs. Mr. Dardane spent nearly 20 years in the best hotels of this country. He looks back upon his eight years' connection with the best restaurants and hotels at Singara Falls as a school of experience enabling him to prepare dishes to suit the tastes of eight seas from all parts of the world.

Mr. Dardane wishes the ladies of Atlanta and vicinity to know that without cost or obligation they may call on him at 98 Luckie street, on what is known as "Harvey's," where they can get quickly prepared hot or cold plate meals for their own families.

What is the distance from the state capitol to Harvey's? It is a mile, many state house officials and employees go there when they think they would like a change of pace to eat. Harvey's has recently become a favorite of those aspiring to political office.

Fred Condra, the manager, who looks for the first of Harvey's, is one of the best-known restaurant men in Georgia. He leans to the seafood side of it, having made seafood a feature of the Silverman restaurant, formerly in the Cathedral building, of which he was the manager for several years. Mr. Condra takes pride in the fact that every day Harvey's receives the individual attention that goes with good service. He makes the claim that he has the best seafood in the state.

Georgia, that they are polite and courteous and render the quick, efficient service that helps to make Harvey's what it is.

Dealers pointed out that various factors were to be considered as affecting the corporate loans market. Among these were the uncertainties connected with the balancing of the national budget and congressional action on taxes.

The railroads again led the declining movement, with most of the second grade bonds showing substantial losses.

The Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

Credit Co-operative Plans Hearten Business Leaders

BY FRANK McCONNELL.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Disciples of the belief that Heaven helps those who help themselves, and that for final solution business must turn to itself rather than government for working out present problems, scored another point last week when they hailed the announcement as a distinct evidence that industry, itself, is now mustering its resources for its own aggressive war on the present business stagnation. They held that a liaison of 12 national leaders—six bankers and six industrialists—would lend unmistakably to a concerted drive in which present efforts which are more or less scattered could be converged on a single target.

It was intimated by some that the program now in the making, although unannounced as to its details, would seek to enlist the aid of over 1,000 Chambers of Commerce throughout the country in directing a gigantic concentrated "push" against the depression. The importance of the formation of the committee, they said, far transcended that of setting up a clearing house for financial leadership. Its ultimate effect, they contended, would be seen in a galvanization of national effort in which probably thousands of businessmen—from leading industrialists down to shopkeepers—would take part in a determined drive to restore prosperity.

Business trends during the week were mixed, with declines outnumbering gains, but with some important developments included in the latter.

Against the losses, there were encouraging gains. Building construction in the first half of April showed a daily average of $5,258,000 which was a healthy gain over the figures for last March which averaged $4,680,000 daily.

Estimated automobile production for the week ended May 14 was 44,387 units, or more than 1,000 cars better than the actual number produced in the preceding week.

Comparative figures for 324 companies for the two years are shown. In 1931, this group spent $134,375,000 compared with $160,290,000 in 1930, a reduction of 16 per cent. The decline for national newspaper advertising as a whole was estimated at 10.8 per cent, the difference being explained by the fact that no figures below $50,000 were considered in the study.

The survey gave the expenditure of 64 food companies in 1931 as $19,240,000 compared with $20,445,000 in 1930.

The advertising totals of 13 tobacco companies, however, increased from $23,885,000 in 1930 to $28,620,000 in 1931, a new high for the group.

Six firms in the publishing group reported their outlay for $1,425,000 to $1,895,000 and 12 wearing apparel concerns from $2,035,000 to $2,480,000 in the corresponding years.

The figures showed that 436 companies each spent $50,000 or more in 1931 for an aggregate total of $148,450,000. The bureau last year reported aggregate expenditures of 470 advertisers at $177,045,000, and remarked that the average expenditure for each of the large advertisers was larger for 1931 than 1930.

Oil shares stand out in sluggish curb list.

By John L. Cooley.

NEW YORK, May 22.—(UP)—Oils advanced, specialties reacted and utilities were irregular on the curb market last week.

Petroleum shares attracted considerable speculative attention. The supreme court decision on Oklahoma probate, the international reparations conference here and optimistic reports by a few company executives contributed to the upward trend. Gains were not fully retained, but the group's undertone had a firm appearance.

Weakest spots among industrials were mostly stocks which had recently been under pressure.

The market was sluggish. It paid little or no attention to formation of the credit expansion committee, nor did it seem to be particularly affected by unfavorable trade news.

UNDERCOVER AGENT TELLS OF KIDNAPING.

GALVESTON, Texas, May 22.—(UP)—Lyman C. Coffin, federal narcotic undercover agent, was recovering here tonight from injuries he said were inflicted by gangsters who kidnaped him from a beach hotel, knocked him unconscious and tossed him into the Gulf of Mexico two miles from shore.

"You'll never call another narcotic agent down here," Coffin quoted the gang leader as warning him before he was strung up by a rope from a beach hotel, knocked him unconscious and tossed him into the Gulf of Mexico two miles from shore.

Coffin who came to Galveston from Kansas City, said he was kidnaped by motor car last night and taken to sea in a launch.

Regaining consciousness in the water, he said he swam to shore, and fell exhausted on the beach. Two youths found him.

ALMAND DISPLAYS WATER SYSTEM LINE

"Everything for the Farm and Dairy," reads the slogan of this old-line house. It is indeed a treat to go through their showrooms at 125 Forsyth street, S. W., for there one will also find many items for the home owner of dependable, merchandise. Myers' full line of pumps and automatic water systems are on display; also farm tools, hardware, machinery and dairy supplies at surprisingly low prices.

B. E. Almand Jr., who has been in this special field for over 20 years, keeps his company well abreast of the times and wishes to extend to his friends and customers an invitation to see the complete line now on display.

RADIO EXPERTS JOIN IN ONE COMPANY

A few months ago two of the pioneer experts in radio installation joined forces and combined their experience and equipment in the firm of the Macy-Swicegood Company. They retained Mr. Swicegood's location at 436 Moreland avenue, N. E.

The advantage this firm has lays in the fact that Jack Macy can take a helper and install new job and J. M. Swicegood take another helper and go anywhere in Georgia and adjoining states and take care of another job. With eight years experience, which is considered a long time in this comparatively new field, these men know exactly what to do in all cases.

They are engineers who rate high among radio men all over the south-eastern states. Many men who now make a living in this line first learned under their hands the fundamentals of the mechanical side of the radio and sound systems.

These are the men who, while working for someone else, put in the sound systems in theaters, hotels, parks, auditoriums, state capitol, amusement parks and trucks. They have installed radios in all parts of Georgia and nearby states, and among the large number are some that are considered to be the finest and largest made.

Messrs. Macy and Swicegood are the men who installed the loud speakers at the motor boat races and other places where no commercial electrical power lines were available.

In this connection they invite inquiries from any committee who wish to stage large political rallies, camp meetings, conventions, outdoor picnics or any other rally or gathering in a remote place where there is no electricity.

Macy & Swicegood are distributors for several lines of popular radios and carry in stock parts of radios that have been sold in this section. They have a very low charge for putting all radios back in good service and in order to be fair with their customers they will give all those who call over Jackson 3870 a quick look-over and estimate before the work is agreed upon, and they will make this estimate without obligation or cost.

Funds to finance exploration of the Castle Rock cave near Fenimore, Wis., have been pledged by a group of business men. Exploring parties have entered the cave before, reaching a series of caverns after crawling 60 feet through a narrow opening.

LOW PRICES RETARD COTTON GOODS SALE

NEW YORK, May 22.—Our sales for the past week are smaller than the previous week, which is due in part to our unwillingness to meet the market on certain constructions, such as 64-40s at 3 cents, as well as to the fact that prices are low enough to begin to attract investment buying of merchandise, provided almost anything of a constructive nature could be announced; and, in this connection, we are hopeful that the new committee headed by Owen D. Young and other prominent industrial leaders and bankers will begin to improve the general state of mind.

While we had a fair business on certain constructions of print cloths and specialties, however, increased from $23,885,000 in 1930 to $28,620,000 in 1931, a new high for the group.

Six firms in the publishing group reported their outlay for $1,425,000 to $1,895,000 and 12 wearing apparel concerns from $2,035,000 to $2,480,000 in the corresponding years.

TARZAN AND THE ANT MEN No. 103

Copyright, 1927, by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc.
Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Behind a grating a man sat dolefully as in the adjoining chamber Tarzan shot down, a victim of the princess' wrath. "Quick!" he shouted when Tarzan burst into view. "To your left!" Turning swiftly, Tarzan beheld two huge African wild cats crouching to spring.

Tarzan whipped out his sword. "If you can hold them off until you reach this gate," cried the man in the next chamber, "I can let you through." Even as he spoke the cats charged, for both were half starved. Then Komodofoffenshot into the den from the trap above.

In the room above, Janzara lunged for Talak's breast, the slave girl caught her wrist and a moment later they went down, locked in one another's embrace. Savagely they fought, two tigers in human form, Janzara screaming, "Die, slave! You shall not have him!"

Komodofoffenshot, with drawn sword landed almost upon the second beast. It turned tail and sprang to a far corner. The prince leaped to aid Tarzan and together they drove off the first cat as they backed toward the gate to safety. But now the second beast suddenly sprang.
